by Daniel Poyerd

DANIEL POYERD

At 17, Daniel was involuntarily committed for 10 months to a wilderness therapeutic boarding school in southern Virginia where he was forced into daily hard labor, extreme systemic control, frequent isolation, and psychological abuse/torture. Now, more than a decade later, he is working to procure federal oversight and regulation of the "Troubled Teen Industry".

ABOUT THE BOOK

In this full-length exposé blending personal testimony with investigative reporting, Daniel traces the origins and evolution of the Troubled Teen Industry, reveals his harrowing firsthand experience, analyzes internal documents from the Discovery School of Virginia, and makes a compelling legal and psychological case for sweeping federal reform.

"Emotion without facts will not change laws, convict those who are guilty of crimes against humanity, or help survivors who recognize their abuse heal and move forward from it. Facts without emotion, though, is the very evil that has permitted this industry to exist as it has, seeing children as numbers, dollar signs, and key performance indicators."
